

Howard Community College – Disability Support Services

Resources for Learning Disability/ADHD Diagnosis

“I think I may have a learning disability, ADHD or a psychological disability. How do I get tested?”

- 1) As Howard Community College does not test for or diagnose disabilities, students are advised to seek a diagnosis from a qualified professional. Some examples of qualified professionals are psychologists, psychiatrists, or educational diagnosticians. Some professionals may accept medical coverage as payment or have sliding scale fees.

- 2) Students should contact their health insurance agency to see if they cover psychological or neuropsychological evaluations.

Please note that Howard Community College does not endorse any particular agency, service or treatment and this listing is for informational purposes only. If you have any additional questions, or know of other local resources to be added to our listing, please call Disability Support Services at (443)518-1300.
