Missing Property	6/23/2008 2:30pm	RCF Bldg.	R. Sims
On date and time stated above, a staff member from the Admissions office brought a lost & found wallet given to her by a white male that was found near a computer in the waiting room. She stated that she looked in the wallet for some identification and found a social security card with the owner's name on it. She then brought the wallet to the security office which was turned in to an officer. In the presence of the staff member, the Security officer searched the wallet and the only contents were several cards including a social security card. The lost and found forms were filled out and the wallet was placed in security's locked file cabinet. A few minutes after the staff member left the security office, the owner of the wallet came to the security office. After checking the contents of his wallet the owner stated that he was missing fifty dollars. The Security officer told the owner that the wallet was searched for identification in the presence of the staff member but there was no money in it. Security then began writing a report of the allegations that were stated. The owner of the wallet left the security office and was on his way back to the Admissions office. While finishing the report, the Security officer remembered the owner's first name and then looked on the lost and found form to get his last name but it was not legible. Security then went to the Admissions office to locate him, but he had left or never arrived. While there Security spoke with a counselor who was assisting in trying to get more information on the owner of the wallet, but nothing was in the system but his first name and miscellaneous last name. The counselor stated that it was possible the owner may be returning for the fall semester. While at the Admissions office Security checked for cameras and there is one in the waiting room overlooking the entire room.
