For the Record	11/2/09 9:15am	RCF Bldg.	S. Hunt

On November 2, 2009, around 9:15am, a student came to the Security Office in the RCF building to report a verbal disagreement on a social website between herself and another HCC student. She stated that the first disagreement occurred about two weeks ago, but escalated on October 27, 2009 via facebook when she commented on a mutual friend's status. The other student began to verbally attack her, by calling her stupid. The other student criticized her religious beliefs, suggesting that she commit suicide and also making discriminatory remarks toward her handicapped twin sister. As described by the student, the other student is about five feet, possibly a white female and 8 months pregnant. No further information provided.

Disposition	This information is a follow up from the report that was written on 11/2/09: While in the café, Security observed a white female that was mentioned in a report on 11/2/09. Security then contacted the Leutenant of the situation, and approached the individual to identify. Security asked if her name was the one that was mentioned in the original report and she stated yes. At this time, Security escorted her to the the security office to get her information. She gave us her full name and ID #. She was informed by security that her name may have been mentioned in an incident and that we needed her last name to complete the report.

Disturbance	11/2/09 1:10pm	Duncan Hall – 2 nd Floor	L. Pennix

On Monday, November 2, 2009 at approximately 1:10pm, Security was dispatched to DH-203 to have a student removed. Upon the Security Officer's arrival, the Leutenients were talking with the student who was asked to leave. The Leutenient asked the Security Officer to get the information from the instructor. When Security went into the class, the instructor stated that she did not want to give her information at that time. She would go to the Security Office to file a report. When the Security Officer came out of DH-203, the Leutenient told the Security officer to get the student's information. The student had no student I.D. She said that the instructor asked her "where's your book?" The student replied "I don't have it" so she looked at another student's book, and asked for a piece of gum. That is when the instructor asked her to leave. The student told the instructor that she wasn't leaving because she couldn't afford to miss another day of class. When the instructor stated that she would call security, the student said "fine I'll just wait for them." When Security spoke to the instructor, she confirmed just about the same as the student, but she says that when she asked her class to go back to their seats from the computers, the student was lacking in movement, and that she was disturbing her class, and she asked her to leave so that she can continue to teach her group. The instructor said that she doesn't want the student in her class until she meets with a student advisor or administrator. The student left without incident. No further information provided.

Disturbance	11/3/09 1:19pm	RCF Bldg.	R. Elie

On date and time stated above, a student came to the Security Office in the RCF building and stated that she felt threatened by two other students which she had a disagreement with during a class discussion, about children with special needs last Thursday. The class is early Childhood Development. That same afternoon, she found a note on her car. Today after class, one of the three students admitted that she was the one who left the note for her in her car. The student stated that they all started arguing with her again. One of them told her that she is a horrible person and everyone else in the class thinks she is disgusting. The student said that they were coming very close to her face and told her to keep her mouth shut, they don't like her opinion. The student was able to identify only the one individual's picture at the Security Office. Since the class was over, Security was not able to identify the other students involved. The student was able to give some names of the individuals involved. The class meets every Tuesday and Thursday from 11:00- 12:20. No further information provided.

Letter on student's vehicle read as follows: "I'm not sure if you do this in all of your classes, but I personally find it very distracting when you talk during class. I have paid to hear what the professor has to say and would appreciate if you respect that. Also is painting your nails in class really appropriate? If you feel you have better things to do during class then listen to the teacher please feel free to do them outside of class. The class as a whole would appreciate your understanding of this matter.

Harassment	11/4/09 9:18am	Duncan Hall – 1 st Floor	D. Khoury

On the morning of November 4, 2009, at approximately 9:18am, Security was informed by dispatch that after a report was made by an individual on October 28, 2009, that a young man had been harassing her on Facebook, the subject had come onto campus and had now been harassing her after her classes. Security was then given a description of the suspect. While completing rounds on post, Security noticed the young male walking into Duncan Hall. Security approached the individual to see if he was an HCC student. He was not and claimed his reason for being on campus was he was waiting on a friend. Security took his information and informed him that he was not allowed onto campus unless he was registering for classes or handling official business and asked him to leave. At approximately 9:29am, the individual was spotted in the Café sitting with some females. Security responded and he then tried to flee up the RCF Stairs. Security then escorted the individual off the campus and informed him that the next time he was on campus not handling official business, Howard County will be called and he will be charged with trespassing. No further information.

On Friday November 6, 2009 at approximately 1:15 during patrol of lot-C, Security observed a green Chevrolet Cavalier parked in head first with a paint drawn picture of what appears to be profanity. While continuing the patrol, Security noticed a silver Mitsubishi Lancer with what appears to be a drawing in blue paint and profanity. Security notified the Director of Security who advised the Security officer to take photos of the vehicles. The Director of Security located the drivers of the two vehicles that contained the graffiti containing profanity on the windows. The vehicle owners advised that their friends did the paintings/drawings and that they are not reporting any type of vandalism. All parties involved are white. At the same time as the interview with the vehicle owners, the friends who did the paintings/drawings came to the security office. They all advised that it was done in fun but after the conversation with the Director of Security did realize the stunt was not appropriate. All parties including the vehicle owners apologized for their actions. Drivers were told to immediately remove the profanity from their vehicles.
